Approved DLMS Change (ADC) 42
Removal of the Materiel Receipt Acknowledgement (MRA) Exclusion
for Navy Manual Ships

1. Originator:

a. Service/Agency: Navy.

b. Originator: Mr. Michael J. Morra, Naval Supply Systems Command

2. Functional Area: Supply

3. Requested Change:

a. Title: Removal of the Materiel Receipt Acknowledgement (MRA) Exclusion for Navy Manual Ships,

b. Description of Change: This administrative change removes the MRA exclusion for Navy manual ships.

c. Procedures:

(1) Revise DoD 4000.25-2-M, Military Standard Transaction Reporting and Accounting Procedures (MILSTRAP), as being amended by Formal Change 5, chapter 6, section C (Exclusions), to delete paragraph C.9 as follows:

~~"9. — Navy manual ships."~~

(2) A corresponding change will be made to DoD 4000.25-M, Defense Logistics Management System (DLMS), volume 2.

4. Reason for Change: Per the Naval Supply Systems Command November 13, 2000, electronic mail (enclosure), Navy has determined that an exclusion from MRA procedures for Navy manual ships is no longer required. All Navy afloat units operate under one of several systems and have 100% MRA capability.

5. Impact:

a. Publications: DoD 4000.25-2-M (MILSTRAP), DoD 4000.25-M (DLMS), and Service/Agency publications as applicable.

b. Systems: No known system impact.

MaryJane,

The Navy no longer requires the exclusion rule.
Please consider this email as the official response.

Michael,

If the exclusion for Navy manual ships is no longer necessary for MRA procedures, please send me a letter to that effect, and I can make an administrative change to MILSTRAP, chapter 6, to remove the exclusion.

Subject: Re: FW: MRA Management Information Report

Mary Jane,

All of our afloat units operate under one of several "systems" and have 100% Material Receipt Acknowledging capability. So my recommendation is to strike the exclusion, unless Michael disagrees.

Michael and Ross,

Re: the email below

Please advise DAASC how Navy manual ships are identified, for the purpose of the exclusion to the MRA procedures.

Thanks,

Mary Jane
